Deafness Dyspepsia Diphtheria

Hundreds of persons who have been deaf for years have had their hearing restored by the use of this Anodyne. It relieves dyspepsia and the distress and sense of weight or fullness in the stomach. When the sufferer is almost suffocated with diphtheria this Anodyne will relieve the worst cases nine times out of ten. For more than 80 years it has soothed and healed the inside and outside aches, pains and diseases of generation after generation. The demand for it has steadily increased. It acts quickly to relieve and cure colds, coughs, catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, colic, croup, cramps, headache, influenza, neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, tonsillitis, sore lips, throat, lungs, burns, chaps, cracks, strains. It is truly marvelous how many different complaints and diseases it will promptly cure.

Johnson's ORIGINAL "ANODYNE" LINIMENT

It was devised by an old fashioned, noble hearted Family Physician, for the good of his fellow men. It has probably saved more lives and relieved more suffering than any other known remedy. All who use it are amazed at its wonderful power. It is unlike any other. It is superior to any other. It is used and recommended by physicians everywhere. No medicine today possesses the confidence of the public to so great an extent. Be not afraid to trust what time has endorsed. Every Mother should have it in the house, dropped on sugar suffering children love it. It is the great vital and muscle nerve. It produces an increase of vital activity in the organs, thus giving the system power to throw off disease.

For the last six or eight years I have been stone deaf in my right ear, and very hard of hearing in my left ear. I have taken doses from various physicians, and applied blisters, with only temporary relief. But of late I am getting permanent benefit for I have been taking Johnson's Anodyne Liniment and applying it to the ear according to directions.

Rough Experience of Missionary Yacht Alert.

Capt. Allen's interesting Letter to the PRESS—This Missionary's Path Is Rough and Stormy Indeed.

Readers of the PRESS will remember that Capt. Allen of the missionary yacht Alert was in this harbor recently and spoke at the Second Parish vestry a week ago last Tuesday. The following letter from him to the PRESS explains itself:

So, Gouldsboro, Me., Oct. 21st.

Dear Sir— I thought I would write you a little account of my trip down here as it was one of the hardest that I have had since that great gale of the 17th of April '94. This is as it is in my log book.

Portland, Me., Oct. 17th.
Wind S. W. At 9.15 a. m. got under way. Set mainmast, jib and gaff topsail. Passed out of harbor at 9.30 a. m. At 10.30 passed Half Way Rock light, 12 m. small struck. I had taken in the jib and gaff-topsail and lowered the mainsail to second reef, when the wind struck with such force that the boat was on her beam ends.

My wife was in the cabin. She was thrown on the floor. Great sheets of water were blown over the stern and the boat was on her beam ends. It lasted 20 minutes and then I got the yacht off before it ran across the bay to Penikese Point. Under the lee of the point the sea was calmer and the water out of the boat. I made Port Clyde that night and anchored. In the night it blew my topsail from the mast while at anchor.

Friday, at 2 p. m. I made sail and ran to Widow's Island in Fox Island Thoroughfare. At 7.20 a. m. I got under way with double reefed mainsail and bonneted jib and started for South Gouldsboro.

When I passed Bass Harbor Head, it was quite smooth, but it breezed up and before I could round Baker's Island, I thought she would swamp with me.

Larger vessels were scudding under double-reefed foretopsails. We arrived here at 1.15 p. m. I have been going to sea 22 years of my life, the most of the time and for all that time, I don't remember of ever seeing the sea make so quick as it did last Saturday. There was not a place on the boat, but that was covered with water and the boy, without any oil clothes to keep him dry had to stand by the halliards to settle the sail away when the squall would strike hard and then when the wind would lull, my wife would take the wheel so as for me to pull up the sail again to keep the boat going ahead fast enough to keep the seas from running on to her stern and sinking her.

While going up Frenchman's Bay, the water was blown up ten feet up on our mainsail. The people were on the wharf to receive us and we received a hearty welcome.

On Sunday afternoon and evening, the school house was filled at both meetings. I fell and hurt my back in the squall and have been so lame that I could do no work since I came here, except to hold my meetings, but praise God I am here and alive. For me to live is Christ and to die is gain. There will be no sailing there and no storm nor cold nor wet to fear.

My wife is going to work for her board now, while I go in the boat so we are to get along as cheap as we can. I wish that if anyone had anything to give us that they would send it to us here at this office.

CAPT. HARRY J. ALLEN.

Union Veteran Legion.

At the regular meeting of the Union Veteran Legion of this city Wednesday evening, Colonel A. A. Nickerson, who had just returned from the national encampment at Buffalo, N. Y., gave an interesting account of the occasion. He said that the city raised $4,000 for the entertainment of the visitors. They were given a 16 mile drive around the city in over 200 of the finest carriages in the city. The procession was headed by a battalion of cavalry from the militia, in regulation uniform.

A communication was received from Washington inviting the Veterans to hold the next National encampment in that city and dedicate the Logan monument that is now being erected in that city. All requisite entertainment was guaranteed.

James K. P. Reed of Newburyport, who was so terribly burned at the fire-lod works which were wrecked by an explosion early Wednesday morning, died at the hospital last night. Henry Chauncy, who was in the mining room is somewhat worse and his case is considered critical. John McLaughlin is at the hospital suffering with internal burns and his recovery is doubtful.

ROOSEVELT'S TRIBUTE TO REED.

The Great Service Mr. Reed Did in Making the House a Legislating Body and Protecting Free Coinage of Silver.

At the banquet of the Massachusetts Republican club in Boston Wednesday night the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt paid the following tribute to the Mr. Reed: Gentlemen, when the next House of Representatives gathers, and when the speaker is elected, the election will mean not only a wonderful triumph for Republicans throughout the nation, but in a particular manner a triumph for the Republicans of New England. (Applause.)

Six years ago Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed was made speaker of the national House of Representatives. At that time we saw the House on the verge of being reduced to absolutely an impotent debating society. I am not speaking figuratively. The art of "filibustering" had been carried to a point of perfection, which rendered it possible for any man gifted with leathern lungs and stout constitution and a microscopical brain capacity to stop the wheels of legislation outright.

Filibustering was not a weapon employed by the men who respected themselves (they were all driven to it now and then by the force of circumstances); it was primarily the weapon of the people who had no respect and no regard for our constitutional and governmental traditions. At this stage of affairs Mr. Reed came in and was made speaker. He had but a narrow majority. No man, no matter how clearly he saw the need of the hour, who had not possessed the iron will and the courage of the people, could have changed these rules. Mr. Reed, backed heartily by the Republican majority, put through certain rules, because of which he was denounced as a tyrant, a czar, a gorilla, maybe. (Laughter.)

Now, what were those rules which he put through, looking back at them now? One rule was that a man who was running up and down the aisle yelling that he was absent should be counted as present. (Laughter and applause.) That was one of the pieces of tyranny under which the nation then groaned. Another bit of tyranny was that when a man, the question being on the passage of a certain bill, got up and talked for 18 or 20 hours about the procession of the equinox or something of that kind, and after all possible liberty of debate had been granted him, should be required either to speak of his subject or sit down. It was the kind of ruling that would be accepted as axiomatic in any town meeting.

They said he strangled debate. Why, the Congressional Record of the 51st Congress contains all the speeches that were made then, and that "strangled debate" occupies a series of volumes considerably larger than the Encyclopedia Britannica. There were something like 1000 more pages of the "strangled debate" of the 51st Congress than in the record of any other Congress that has ever sat.

Finally, under the old rules which they had introduced, they came to an absolute and complete halt. They could not get a law passed; they could not get anything done, and they reintroduced the very rules, for the putting into practice of which they had so bitterly denounced Mr. Reed. (Applause.)

And following that came the one triumph needed to make the triumph complete. The people returned a Republican Congress to power, a Congress that was Republican by a larger majority than any that we have yet seen in the 40 years of the party's life. (Applause.) And when Reed takes the speaker's chair, in December next, he will be enjoying a triumph such as has hardly befallen a single statesman in all the century of our national life. (Applause.)

And there is another point concerning which New England can afford to feel satisfaction. The great New England representative, Mr. Reed, does not have to be explaining his position. We hear a good many demands, sometimes justifiable, that certain men shall explain their position. Take Mr. Carlisle, for instance. I do not wonder that very great interest is felt when Mr. Carlisle comes here and states his position upon finance, for Mr. Carlisle has occupied a good many different positions on finance, and for three days by the exercise of his commanding personal influence, by his appeals to the loyalty of his party friends, by his absolute straightforwardness of purpose and by the indomitable resolution with which he stood for what he knew to be right, he kept that bill back until the friends of sound finance were obliged to rally the only vote they needed. (Applause.)

That was the deed of a New England man and of a New England Republican, and all Republicans have a right, and especially the New England Republicans, to hold their heads higher because he stands foremost in their party. (Applause.)

You cannot find one single occasion when Mr. Reed did not rise to the highest level of patriotism, one single occasion when he failed to stand up and be counted with the friends of honest money. And, mind you, he was put through the fire. It was no light thing for him to have to take the position he did in opposition to many of his sincere friends in the far West, but he never flinched, he never hesitated. He has remained from the beginning till now at the stanch, straight-out, never flinching friend of honest finance.

due to disease, or an impoverished condition of the blood, are a source of annoyance to the medical fraternity. While continually growing deeper and larger the circle of diseased flesh surrounding them is all the time extending, closing up the ducts through which replenishment of tissue should come. For such troubles physicians everywhere are praising the results obtained by the use of

Bovinine

In the first place the system needs re-invigorating, new flesh tissue should be formed, new and pure blood created, in fact, a new and well nourished body where room for disease does not exist. Food is the thing, and Bovinine, that greatest concentration of the vitalizing elements of lean beef, is the most fitting nourishment of all for speedy results. A PERFECT TOWN GOSSIP.

Everybody is Talking About It—The City of Portland Has Never Been Thrown in a State of Fever Excitement As It Has at Present.

Hundreds of people were seen yesterday to enter the residence of Professor Jules at 69 Spring street, who is considered the greatest living spiritualist healer the world has ever produced, and who lately it was a surprise and astonishment, as the professor puts no question to his patient and diagnoses all cases without asking any questions. The professor has just made a trip through Colorado and New Mexico, where the people called him the Messiah, and has accomplished the most miraculous cures ever known. Mr. Jules, of Lewiston, Me., says: "My wife has been paralyzed for four years, and through the powers of this wonderful healer, Professor Jules, is able to walk around everywhere. He accomplished all this without any internal medicines." Mr. F. McDonald of Bridgeport says: "I have been blind for four years. I have visited Europe and consulted prominent oculists, and of no avail, and Professor Jules has restored my eyesight once more. Crippled for fourteen years, unable to use any of my limbs and abandoned by physicians, I will cheerfully recommend all who are in distress to call on the phenomenon, Professor Jules." Charles Harkney of Bangor and hundreds of other testimonials can be shown, but you must call and make an early engagement at the Baine House, 69 Spring street, with Professor M. Jules.

The Presumpscot Lower Than It Has Been For Years.

BUT STILL AT WORK TURNING THE MILL WHEELS.

How the Dry Summer Has Made Itself Felt in Westbrook—The Water Power Shows How Good a One It Is—Gorham to Have a Taste.

"There was just rain enough last summer," said a Westbrook mill owner yesterday, "to make the raspberry crop good." As a result of the scanty rain fall, the mills along the Presumpscot are just now pretty careful of the water. But Sebago Lake is a big reservoir and the mill wheels turned by its waters are still doing business, although not as briskly as in usual times. The Westbrook people are not put to so much inconvenience as have been the mill men along the Kennebec and Penobscot. Only recently, the broom stick trains in Bangor were running irregularly because of the low water and in Augusta the street lights failed to burn, while a Gardiner man, the owner of a saw mill, said that he couldn't get his logs over the Augusta dam on a certain Sunday because the river was so low that when the wind blew up stream, as it did on that day, there was not water enough to float the logs over. It speaks well, therefore, for the Westbrook Water power that the long dryness has caused so little trouble. To be sure, the electric light plant is now operated with the assistance of power from the paper mills and those great hives of industry are relying to a large extent upon the steam plant, but the mills are all doing business and most of them with water power.

Mr. John E. Warren, manager of the paper mills, keeps an accurate record of the state of the river and he told a PRESS reporter this afternoon that the river is now as low as it has been since 1880. At the electric light station on the upper dam, there is a board on which is a scale of feet and inches. When the river is at its normal height on the dam, it registers at the zero mark on this scale. It is now over four feet below that so low that looking from the windows of the lower station above, you can see the bottom. Just above the station, a ledge running across the bottom of the stream makes a partial dam and holds back the water when it gets as low as it now is. Should the gates be opened to their full extent, the water below this natural barrier would be all sucked away, but by only partially opening the gates the big wheels are kept in motion, although not at full speed. The water here has not registered so low for ten years. On the little island on which stands the electric light station in the Dana warp mill. Here the situation is much the same. The mill is running all right and will continue to do so, but it, too, has to be careful of the water. The Westbrook Manufacturing company has gotten over the difficulty of reduced power by working night and day. The other concerns along the river are in somewhat similar shape.

The region round about is not exactly water soaked, and the farmers say that wells are dry which were never known before to be exhausted. A gentleman who has resided here for thirty years said today that he had never known the country so dry. Naturally to one not conversant with the amounts in which the water is drawn from the lake, there is some curiosity as to the attitude of the mill owners in regard to the extension of the system of water supply derived from Sebago by the inclusion of the Gorham works, but the mill owners, and they are naturally experts on the question, unite in saying that that is a more trifling. It has been estimated that the Portland Water company uses only about two per cent of the overflow of the lake, and the extension of the system to include Gorham would make no appreciable difference. That will soon be done, for the workmen at Gorham received orders only a day or two ago to begin operations looking to the connection with the present system.

LOW WATER AT AUGUSTA.

Causes the Shutting Down of the Manufacturing Industries.

Augusta, October 24.—The low water has necessitated shutting down the pulp and paper mills in this city. The mills have large orders on hand. In the paper mill the heating machines are run by water so that the lack of supply shuts down the entire plant.

An Old Pastor Coming.

Mr. Charles Baker received a letter yesterday from Rev. J. B. Husted, who was associate pastor with Rev. Charles Baker, pastor in 1883, saying that he should be pleased to be present at the great Chestnut street celebration in November. At the time Mr. Husted was associate pastor, there was no Chestnut street or Pine street societies, but Portland was known as Portland station under Rev. Charles Baker who preached down town while Mr. Husted preached at what is now the Park street Presbyterian church.

Mr. Husted said he could hardly realize that it was sixty-two years since he preached in Portland. He requested that as he was in his ninety-first year, he might be accommodated with quarters near the church. No one to read the letter would imagine it the effort of a man of so great an age.

Two Old Ladies.

Mrs. Jane Niles, mother of the late N. Niles, the well known advertising agent at Boston, celebrated her 91st birthday anniversary Sunday, at the old James Dyer homestead in this city. Mrs. Niles retains almost perfectly the use of all her faculties, and received a good many callers Sunday in honor of her natal day. Mrs. James Dyer, who is 90 years and six months old, resides at the same homestead, and the two aged ladies are a remarkable pair, considering their good health and wonderful retention of faculties at such an advanced age.

The Allan and Dominion lines steamers will be here, and perhaps also the Elder Dempster line, which is the Bristol service of the Old Dominion line.

THE OLD ENGINE.

Veteran Firemen Take Their Machine to Its New Quarters.

Last evening this town resounded with a celebration of that ever youthful, ever vigorous organization, the Veteran Firemen. They were removing their engine, a well cherished tub of antique design and ancient fame, from its old quarters in the lower corridor in City Hall to the new quarters of the organization in the old Casco engine house at the corner of Spring and South streets.

The moving was no small show. First came Treasurer A. J. Cummings, heading the procession and bearing a red lantern. Then came the Veteran Firemen's band, 13 pieces, led by Henry C. Leary. Then came the veterans, white helmets on their heads, the light of joy in their eyes, and the elasticity of youth in their steps. There must have been 150 of them on the ropes, while behind rattled the old engine.

Up Congress street moved the procession, the band playing bravely and all the town wondering. At Machinogone engine house there was a heavy welcome from the active workers. Thence the procession moved to State street square, thence to Brackett street, where they were saluted from the active firemen there, thence down Spring street, where there were red lanterns and more salutes. Then the procession moved straight to the old house on South street where the machine was housed with as much tenderness as the ophanot of an ancient monarch.

WEDDINGS.

Nickerson—Waite.

The great old house in Canton, built in the last century by General Livermore, and at present the residence of Mr. Byron C. Waite the father of the bride, was the scene of a happy wedding Wednesday morning, October 23d, the contracting parties being Dr. Harry M. Nickerson of this city, and Miss Ella M. Waite. The officiating minister was Rev. F. C. Rogers of the Pine street church of this city. A party of nearly thirty friends witnessed the ceremony, admired the gifts and congratulated the newly wedded pair, after which a wedding breakfast was served. Beside the guests from Portland, there were friends from Boston, Chicago and Livermore. Dr. and Mrs. Nickerson will reside at 704 Congress street, where the doctor's father, Mr. A. A. Nickerson, also resides.

Ballard—York.

A pretty but quiet wedding took place Wednesday morning at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Ballard, Stevens Plains avenue, Deering when Miss Minnie S. Ballard of Deering was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. F. York of Portland. The officiating clergyman was Rev. H. S. Whitman president of Westbrook Seminary.

The cosy parlor was fragrant with choice cut flowers, offerings from the bride's brother. Mr. and Mrs. York left on the noon train for a trip to New York and Washington. They will be at home, 333 Stevens Plains avenue, after Nov. 23. No cards.

Fargo—Drummond.

A very handsome wedding was that of Mr. Mortimer Fargo, brother of the president of the Wells, Fargo Express company, of New York, to Miss Jennie Drummond, daughter of the late Captain Rufus Drummond of Bath, at that city Wednesday evening. Rev. Mr. Folsom performed the ceremony. Among the guests from Portland who went down in the special train provided by Manager Tucker of the Maine Central, were Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, Mrs. Drummond and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Chapman, Mr. Charles Reed of Detroit and Col. Henry S. Osgood.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

The weather today is likely to be fair.

PORTLAND, OCT. 25th, 1895.

YOU judges of Linen values will be a bit surprised at the Towel-goods

that's to be had here now—adays for 25c. Made in northern Germany from purest flax, smoothly and evenly woven by people who have never done anything in their lives but make towels, bleached and finished by the latest processes, full 22x48 inches in size, (that's enormous you know) and all for the paltry quarter of a dollar. We've put on sale to-day a fifty dozen lot of these great towels, a few days will see the last of them because the value's unusual.

Another tempting bargain in the Linens department is an Irish damask snow drop set at $5. The same old dainty snowdrop pattern that was on your grandmother's best table cloth a hundred years ago, just as pretty and quite as fashionable to-day as it was then, large ample napkins to match with a graceful Grecian border all around—five dollars for the set.

This Linens counter aims to have whatever you ask for and it rarely goes amiss. It also has many items that you'd never think of asking for, and that's reason enough why you should take a look through the Linens section as often as you come down town.

For instance, Roller Towels, all made, ready to hang up, made of good crash, plenty wide enough and fine enough for the kitchen—28c, and dish towels at the price of the crash and no extra charge for hemming. Silk chamamois cloths for rubbing silver or varnished furniture, better than real chamamois and less than a quarter the cost. Scrub cloths for rough work, bath mittens,—you don't know the resources of this most interesting part of the store unless you come often.
